Kimberly Jenkins, Wilkes County Agent

Education: B.S. Nutrition Science, University of Georgia

Programming focus: Chronic Disease Prevention/Healthy Lifestyles

The Family and Consumer Science (FACS) Program in Wilkes County is a re-emerging program area. Our FACS programming will include the Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program (EFNEP) and provide educational opportunities to address the needs of our population. Wilkes County is ranked 130 out of 159 for known measured factors that affect health. These rankings are generated based on health behaviors, clinical care, social and economic factors, and physical environment. Educational opportunities abound for health and family education for Wilkes County citizens.

County media: Washington/Wilkes News Reporter.