

04.03.2020

FACS Faculty:

Due to the unusual circumstances of Spring 2020 semester, FACS along with UGA will not be asking students to complete typical end-of-course evaluations (with the exception of online courses that were already in progress). Rather than “evaluating teaching” we will be “gathering feedback” using a form that asks 4 open-ended questions:

- What positive strategies or approaches did this instructor use during the first half of the Spring 2020 semester?
- What positive strategies or approaches did this instructor use, during the remote instruction phase of the Spring 2020 semester?
- What strategies or approaches could have been improved during the remote instruction?
- Additional Comments: Please use this space to share additional comments about your experiences during any portion of this course during Spring 2020 semester.

This Spring 2020 feedback from students may be used for the purposes of annual review and promotion and tenure dossiers.

Input from the FACS department undergraduate and graduate coordinators along with recommendations of CTL were taken into account to determine how end-of-course feedback would take place this semester. For your information, the attached .pdf contains information about considerations related to student feedback this semester and instructor self-reflection.

This memo has been shared with Department Heads and Office Managers or those staff who typically prepare and send out course evaluations for your department.

Thank you for all you've done and continue to do with online teaching. Patti

Patricia Hunt-Hurst, Ph.D.
Associate Dean for Academic Programs
Janette McGarity Barber Distinguished Professor
Professor
College of Family and Consumer Sciences
University of Georgia