   a. From Anne: I have students who arrive at UGA as freshmen with around 30 hours of credit. The Double Dawgs program is designed for students to start fall of their junior year. What is everyone’s department doing with students who are that far ahead on their hours? Are you letting them apply to DD in the spring of their freshman year and letting them start their graduate courses as a first semester sophomore? Am I the only one who sees this as an issue, developmentally? How do we advise around this issue?
