At these events, you'll have the opportunity to participate in a research study about whether households that are eligible to receive the Earned Income Tax Credit actually claim and receive the EITC and how receiving the EITC benefits their family relationships. You will be paid up to $20 for completing a survey. More information will be provided at the events.

This research is being conducted by Dr. Lance Palmer in the Financial Planning, Housing and Consumer Economics Department at the University of Georgia. It is supported and 100 percent funded by the Office of Minority Health of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) as part of a financial assistance award totaling $448,899.
