The Dekalb County Family and Consumer Science (FACS) program place non- biased, research-based information at your fingertips for the many facets of your life. FACS programming includes the Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program (EFNEP)'s Food Talk Program (Hablemos de Comida). Food Talk is an 8-week a free, 8-week nutrition education program. By attending a Food Talk class, you'll learn from a nutrition educator how to eat more healthfully, feed your family on a budget, keep your food safe, and the best part -- you'll learn how to make a delicious new recipe and get to taste it! These educational opportunities to address the needs of our low-income population. County needs are a basis of healthy living, clinical care, social and economic factors, and physical environment.
