VII. TEACHING

Teaching Fields:

Consumer Analytics, Consumer Insights, Data Analytics

A. UNDERGRADUATE/GRADUATE COURSES CO-TAUGHT

- FHCE 5050/7050: Consumer Analytics: Evidence-Based Innovation, Spring 2022

Student Teaching Feedback: “The lectures given were clear and informative on methods used in the course. There was consistent feedback and assistance given in and out of classroom settings.” “She always had great suggestions for how to improve our work, and she knew how to explain things in a way that made sense to us.” “Hannah was an exceptional teacher and is very good at her craft. There was a particular moment that stood out to me that made me appreciate her over a lot of other teachers I have experienced. A peer student was emotional about not being able to understand an assignment and instead of being so harsh she showed a lot of sensitivity and stayed past class hours to help both of us understand the material. That is so unique and rare nowadays especially in college settings.”

B. UNDERGRADUATE/GRADUATE COURSES ASSISTED

- FHCE 5050/7050: Consumer Analytics: Evidence-Based Innovation, Spring 2021

Student Teaching Feedback: “Hannah was awesome and I cannot say a single bad thing about her. She was always willing to help and email back very promptly. She was always very attentive during class and made me feel comfortable asking questions.” “Amazing TA! She really made an effort to check in with all the students and make sure they knew what was going on! She always sent little notes in the Zoom about how to do things which was always very helpful.” “I loved that Hannah came around to all the groups and was very helpful. She showed insight into how the group roles were playing out and offered feedback for the team to switch it up so that we would all learn all aspects.”
