Candace Tucker, Coweta County Agent

Education: M.A. in Health Studies, University of Alabama; B.S. in Nutrition, Georgia State University.

Programming focus: Food Safety and Preservation; Chronic Disease Prevention/Healthy Lifestyles; Positive Development for Individuals, Families, and Communities.

The University of Georgia (UGA) Cooperative Extension Coweta County Family and Consumer Sciences (FACS) Program offers research-based programming on family, nutrition, food safety, health, home, and finances. We take a tailored approach to programming in order to effectively meet community needs and sustain on-going participation. It is through various avenues of information dissemination and community partnerships that allow us to empower individuals and groups with the tools and resources to lead healthy, productive lives.
